Center for Parenting Update

Regional Parent Education Conferences:

On April 4th, the Center for Parenting hosted the second Regional Parent Education Conference in Johnson City for the northeast region of the state. Here's what a few participants had to say about what they found most helpful from the conference:

- "The professional development and networking opportunities."
- "Meeting other providers in our area."
- "Relaxation techniques and icebreaker techniques."
- "Connections with other parent educators."
- "Everything was helpful!"

We will be hosting the Southwest Regional Parent Education Conference in Jackson in October. If you are interested in attending or know of others who might be interested, please let us know by emailing the C4P at center4parenting@utk.edu.

Featured Family Program

Claiborne County Schools PARENT Initiative

The PARENT (Parents And teachers Reaching Educational Needs Together) Initiative was formed in the Spring of 2007 for the Claiborne County School System to address each school's need for more parental involvement. Parental involvement and support in the schools is critical to student success. Claiborne County Schools support parent and community involvement by offering programs related to the following topics: parenting, communication, volunteering, involving families in their child's learning activities at home, decision-making, and collaborating with the community. Each school in the district has a Parent Involvement Ambassador, a highly qualified individual responsible for forming and governing a Parent Involvement Committee (a group of parents who coordinate involvement and collaborate with community members and other parents). Since its inception, the initiative has increased parental involvement in each of the schools. To find out more about the Claiborne County Schools PARENT Initiative contact Melinda Turner at turnerm2@k12tn.net or 423-626-3323.

Keeping You Connected and Informed

- The Protective Factors Survey is a pre-post-evaluation tool for agencies providing child abuse prevention services. The survey is designed to be self-administered and can be used individually or with groups. The survey results are designed to help agencies measure changes in protective factors that are associated with lower levels of child abuse and identify areas where workers can focus to increase individual family protective factors. The survey measures protective factors in these five areas: family functioning/resiliency, social support, concrete support, nurturing and attachment, and knowledge of parenting/child development. For more information and to obtain the Protective Factors Survey please visit: <http://www.friendsnrc.org/outcome/pfs.htm>

Tools for Parent Educators

- Cultural Diversity Bingo is a good activity to be used by parent educators to help participants recognize that diversity comes in many forms. This activity also helps members of a group become acquainted with one another. To find the Cultural Diversity Bingo card, please click here: <http://home.snu.edu/~hcultbert/bingo.htm>. Instructions for the activity: The participants should find persons who match the information on the card to sign the squares. Each person can sign no more than two squares. The winner is the first person to bingo vertically, diagonally, or horizontally.
- Another icebreaker or opener for your parent education class is the Bumper Sticker Activity. Each participant is given a piece of paper and provided markers. The participants are asked to create a bumper sticker that highlights a talent, ability, or quality that their child possesses. Their creations are then shared with the group. On a board or flip chart, a list is created of the talents shared. (Example: "Mom of a Kind Kid.") This activity helps parents focus on the positive qualities of their children.
